The Lord God of Israel, Thy people Israel are righteous, in that we are left this day a remnant to escape as it is this day. Behold, we come before Thee in our trespass, for we cannot stand any more because of this thing. Behold, the anger of Thy people is kindled against us, and we are consumed with Thy fierce wrath, and Thy hand is against us. Behold, Thy people are smitten before their enemies, and we are ready to be smitten and consumed before them. Behold, we know not what we should do, for we are surrounded on every side by our enemies, and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do that we may escape from our enemies, for we are encompassed about by them on every side, and our hearts are broken within us. Behold, we know not what we should do that we may escape from our enemies, for we are encompassed about by them on every side, and our hearts are broken within us. Behold, we know not what we should do that we may escape from our enemies, for we are encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.
Behold, we know not what we should do
that we may escape from our enemies,
for we are encompassed about by them
on every side, and our hearts are
broken within us. Behold, we know not
what we should do that we may escape
from our enemies, for we are encompassed
about by them on every side, and our
hearts are broken within us. Behold,
we know not what we should do that we
may escape from our enemies, for we are
encompassed about by them on every side,
and our hearts are broken within us.